In 2008-09, State System institutions awarded a total of 24,211 associate and bachelor’s degrees – the most awarded in a single year in state history. This is 27.4 percent more degrees awarded than in 2000-2001.
Oklahoma is 1 of 22 states accepted to participate in the Complete College America project to help more Americans achieve their dream of a college education.

Oklahoma was accepted because the State has made a commitment to significantly increase the number of students successfully completing college and closing educational attainment gaps for traditionally underserved populations.

Five national foundations are providing multi-year support to CCA: the Carnegie Corporation; the Gates Foundation; the Ford Foundation; the Kellogg Foundation; and Lumina Foundation for Education.

REACH HIGHER
Key Concerns

• Current initiative assumes that all potential students want/need a Bachelor’s degree in Organizational Leadership.

• Additional high-demand discipline areas must be identified to create options for bachelor’s degree completion (General Studies, General Business, Communications, Allied Health, etc.)

• Potential for significant degree completion is greater at the associate degree level

• Focus on program development has ignored the already robust set of fully articulated courses in OSRHE Course Equivalency Project (47 disciplines, over 600 course groupings, and almost 8,000 courses)
REACH HIGHER
Recent Developments

• State’s 12 community colleges and 2 technical branches of OSU developed a collaborative associate degree with options in General Business and General Studies.

• Utilizing CEP, the program was approved by OSRHE Sept.’10 for implementation Jan.’11.

• Conceptually approved the shift from “a program” to a clearinghouse of degree completion options that leverage multiple partnerships within the colleges and universities

• Significant shift of administrative and program money to outreach efforts

• Maximizing available CACG funds for program development and scholarship incentives
REACH HIGHER is (now)…

- Oklahoma’s major public policy focus on adult degree completion and offering multiple, flexible, and affordable degree completion programs.

- For working adults who want to finish their college degree (bachelor’s or associate degree) from a state university or community college.

- A second chance to finish a degree – while keeping a normal routine, maintaining normal work hours and having family time.
